In lieu of these taxes, which were troublesome to collect and vexatious and distasteful to the consumer, a tax has been put upon tobacco and saké. It is calculated that those new taxes will yield about only 50 cents enob, $2,000,000, a substantial increase, which will be gained, moreover, without its payment being felt oppressive. The man if it can avoided; the masses of the people should have no impediment placed in the way of obtaining plenty of good food. Especially is this applicable to Japan, where the millions are very poor, and have to fight hard for their daily bread. The measure is calculated, therefore, to give great satisfaction to the large majority of the MIKADO'S subjects. It is certainly a wise step, and the Ministry deserve euconium for its inception. But another concession, perhaps more important still in its immediate results, has also just been made by the Japanese Government. The Japan Mail announces that they have revoked the prohibition on the export of rice, rendered necessary by the late dispute with China, and which has lingered since. It would have been folly, and worse than folly, had they allowed this prohibition to have gone on much longer, for the production of rice is one of the chief industries of Japan, and on its export depends in great measure the prosperity of the country. Unlike China, was determined not to let any more go. Numerous complaints have lately been made of robberies on board vessels in the harbour It is the common practice of the thieves go on board under the pretence of having business with some of the officers or to vend goods to the crew. Once on deck they watch their opportunity keeply, and too frequently it is afforded them. The officers are usually too busy to spare much time to look very parrowly after light-fingered gentry, even if they suspect their presence, and the crew are often very careless. Occasionally the bouty gained by these pilferers is very considerable. and they are by no means particular as to what their plunder consists of. Goods to the value of £70 were carried off from the P. & O. Company's steamer Pera the other day. The modus operandi of these marine robbers is tolerably well planned and but sel- capable, near the old Civil Hospital, was fixed dom involves them in trouble. A boat waits below, alongside the ship, and into it articles are slyly dropped when the attention of the owners or crew is distracted. The evil seems to be increasing, probably because the risk is not great in proportion to the profits arising from it. But the captains and officers of the vessels really have themselves chiefly to blame for the losses thus incurred, for they allow a far too indiscriminate boarding of their decks by pretended hawkers and coolies. They are also often extremely careless in the matter of leaving doors and windows open. It. is not surprising, under these circumstances, that robberies of this description are frequent, and it is to be feared they will continue to be whom he had known for two mouths. > SLIP BETWEEN THE CUP AND LIP A popular old ballad, after a reference to needlee and pine," nesures us that " with matrimony our sorrow begins." Such certainly appears to be the case in Bulgaria, where, on the 24th January, an unfortunate incident, or rather a series of unfortunate incidents, considerably marred the enjoyment of what ought to have been a wedding. It seems that a railway engineer, M. Simon, living at Shumla, was to have been murried on that day to a young Bulgarian lady, with the full approbation of her relatives. The bridegroom and his friends assembled at the house of the bride, where a Bulgarian priest was to unite the happy couple. The priest, however, never arrived, but several groups of young Bulgarians assembled outside the house, under the instigation of two schoolmasters, to prevent the marriage, as M. Simon was a French Catholic. After waiting until 4 o'clock in the afternoon for the priest, the to return home. Of course, as long as I remained at Baga-

I was so engrossed, too, with the novel duties of suppressing turbulence and debauchery that I had not much time left for anything else. On the fifth day, therefore, after arriving at Bagamoyo, the bugle announced the murch, and, though we had some trouble in collecting the laggards, by nine a.m. the last man had left the town. At Shamba Gonera, my former first camp, the men munifested a disposition to stop, in order to bayo "one more night of it" at Bagamovo; but by this time, as you may imagine, had had enough of such scenes, and they were bodily driven on by the armed guard, not without considerable violence. preparing my last letters, I was rather surprised by a visit paid me in my comp from a party of the Suitan's soldiers, the chief of whom bore a letter from the Governor of Bagamoyo, wherein he complained that my people had induced about fifteen women to abandon their masters. On mustering the people and inquiring into their domestic affoirs, it was discovered that a large number of women had indeed joined the expedition during the night. Most of them, however, bore free papers accorded to them by the political agent at Zanzibar; but eleven were, by their own confessions, runkway slaves. After being hospitably received by the Sultan of Zanzibar and the Arabe, it was no part of a stranger's duty-unless authorised by some Government likely to abide by its agent's actions to countenance such a novel mode of liberating Victoria Fire Insurance Company a Shares—To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the Co.'s peculiar principle, thereby making an old HOLE AGENT FOR CHINA I the slaves.
